Excerpt of pertinent information:

P. 1—

The Rumanian political emigration in Spain is fairly small and until recently has been divided into two groups: one politically active and the other without a definite ideology. Only sporadic connections exist between the two groups, without intimacy but also without great rivalry or enmity. A new factor is now entering the picture—the Democratic Union of Free Rumanians abroad, under the presidency of General RADESCU; thus far only two persons now in Spain have joined up. However, it is believed that the recent arrival of former diplomat Nicola DIANU may presage a more active role for RADESCU's organization. . .

P. 4—George ANTONIADE, now active in private business, ANTONIADE formerly was commercial attache of the Rumanian Legation here. He is the son of the former Rumanian delegate to the League of Nations in Geneva. He and BUSUIOCLEANU are the only Rumanians in Spain who have officially announced adherence to the Democratic Union of RADESCU. . . . .

P. 6—Nicola DIANU, sixty years old, a bachelor, miserly, one-time minister plenipotentiary of the Rumanian diplomatic school, DIANU was Rumanian minister in Chile and later in Moscow and The Hague. He arrived here only a few days ago. His political convictions are those of the Liberal Party of Rumania and now he probably is going to be the official representative of General RADESCU in Spain.
